HELLO EVERYONE!

The Dells-Lake Delton Area Guide is a guide to dining, recreation, and entertainment in the world famous Wisconsin Dells-Lake Delton Area. The "Places To Go, Things To Do and See" column will guide the reader to the best attractions, restaurants, resorts and service shops in this wonderful wonderland.

Other articles are designed to serve the reader in a similar manner — a service we trust will be of assistance.

The Dells-Delton Area Guide is published by the Wisconsin Dells Events. Copies of this special summer edition are distributed FREE OF CHARGE to motels, hotels, resorts, restaurants and bars throughout the Wisconsin Dells-Lake Delton Area. The Guide is also distributed to four information centers — Kenosha, Beloit, La Crosse and Hudson (near Minneapolis-St. Paul) for your convenience.

To Visitors of this famed vacationland — WELCOME! We hope the Dells-Lake Delton Area Guide will help to make your stay in the area a pleasant one.

Wonder Spot Is A World Wonder

At the Wonder Spot you wonder what in the world is going to happen next.

The Wonder Spot, located off Hwy. 12 across from Fischer's Supper Club is one of the world's mysteries as weird things happen the minute the tour begins.

L. P. Dauterman, Fon du Lac, noticed strange events occuring after he purchased a Lake Delton summer cottage for a hide away in 1948.

He found that within a 50 foot area on which his cabin was built, unusual things were happening; he'd walk next to a man taller than he was and all of a sudden, the man would appear shorter.

Because rain had washed part of the foundation from under the house, the structure leaned at an angle. Dauterman figured some magnetic attraction was causing the unusual effects and he asked a University of Minnesota geologist to offer an explanation.

The geologist suggested the possible presence of a layer of igneous rock close to the surface of the soil which might cause a slight deviation from normal gravity.

The Wonder Spot is a puzzling phenomenon for adults and sheer pleasure for the children. Tour guides take visitors through the unique experience and give various demonstrations of the unpredictable gravity pull.

Most people are drawn to Wonder Spot out of curiosity, people tell them they won't believe it—and when they come—they really don't believe what they see.

You get an entirely new slant of life as children enjoy seeing their parents attempt to stand upright in the slanting world of the cabin.

While children are willing participants in the demonstrations, only adults can really get the full impact of some of the weird happenings. One such demonstration includes dropping a penny that falls several feet from where you expect it to land.

Visitors are asked to sign the guest book and to designate the area in which they live. Then license plates are hung on the wall from each state and foreign country represented. Each year there are 50 states and about 35 countires represented in the display.

WISCONSIN DUCKS—Information, adventure and thrills on land coupled with relaxing water voyages are featured on the Wisconsin Ducks ride.

15 Swimming Safety Cues May Save Your Life

The U. S. department of agriculture experts have listed 15 safety cues for swimming which will help you protect your family this summer.

—Build a fence around pools, ponds or any deep water to keep children out.

—Make sure your pool or pond does not get drainage from sewers or surface water that may be contaminated by pets, animals or humans.

—Stay away from water during lightning storms.

Supervise children while they are in or near water that's more than knee-deep.

Have a companion or someone nearby when they are swimming.

Think about water depth, boat traffic, tides, currents, water cleanliness and lifeguards when deciding whether to swim.

Be on the lookout for other boats, swimmers, obstructions and bad weather when you're in the water.

Load a boat no more than the rated capacity and distribute the load evenly.

Learn to be a good swimmer before diving. Don't dive into shallow waters.

When boating or skiing, have everyone wear a life jacket.

Learn mouth to mouth method of artificial resuscitation.

Any pool, pond or deep water should have a rescue station with life buoy, 50 feet of rope, 12-14 ft. pole, first aid kit and instructions.

Don't go into water when extremely tired or hot.

Call for help only when you need it.

I GIVE UP—As Black Bart holds up his hands in surrender, the bride slips the wedding band on his finger. Father Bernard Pickarts performed the ceremony.

Northern Belle Captures Black Bart

Well, Black Bart was finally captured — by a northern belle named Ann Rybarczyk.

The marriage ceremony of Ann Rybarczyk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rybarczyk, and Greg Zastava (Black Bart), son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Zastava, took place at Fort Dells, Wisconsin Dells, Saturday, Aug. 17 at 8 p.m.

The bride's attendants were Dianne Zastava, sister-in-law of the bride, Lynn Rybarczyk and Cathy Rybarczyk.

Attendants for the groom were Tim Zastava, best man; Toby Zastava, Mike Rybarczyk and Bernie Rybarczyk, Jr.

The ring bearer was Neil Rybarczyk.

Mrs. Edna Nelson, grandmother of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grunemus, grandparents of the bride, attended the wedding.

Following a stagecoach ride to the Chaparel steak house, the reception was held for 250-300 people.

A highlight of the wedding ceremony was the singing by the Fort's marshall, Mike Sullivan. His selections were Never Be Anyone Else But You, If, Wedding Song, Anne's Song and A Very Special Love Song.

"The bride and groom planned the whole ceremony," reported Fort Dells manager, John Dixon, "and it was very well done — in extremely good taste."

Steaks Lure Zander, Beebe

Robin Zander and Brian Beebe were rewarded with a free steak dinner when they came to Wisconsin Dells four years ago and now they can afford steak every night.

The duo, better known as Zander and Kent, have become a fixture in the Beer Keg and Lookout Lounge, pleasing an expansive clientele six nights a week.

Zander and Kent (Beebe's middle name) are two 21-year-old masters of contemporary music with a memorable past and a promising future. One of the twosome's favorite numbers "The Impossible Dream," can very well tell the plight of the local pop stars as they look for the rainbow beyond the night lights of Wisconsin Dells.

The Rockford, Ill. natives came to visit a friend in the Dells in July 1971 and the friend told Beebe to go home and get his guitar. That $50 Montgomery Wards guitar and a beat-up Chevy van proved the start of something big.

Zander and Beebe met in Harlem High School while singing in operettas and similar musical interests inspired them to team up. Their first gig was the Piccadilly Pub in Rockford when they were the second group to perform.

"We stood up there with one acoustic guitar, both singing, Beebe said, but the crowd likes us. Some even stood when we did 'The Impossible Dream!' It inspired us to go on in music."

In the Dells, Zander and Kent lived in the back of the van for two weeks and "got chased off for illegal camping" in one instance," Beebe said.

During those first two weeks, they played to a big picnic crowd behind the old Mark III establishment for a one-nighter and then were introduced around town by a friend.

One of the introductions included Con Gavinski of the Beer Keg on Broadway and a five hour afternoon audition followed. So did the steak dinners.

One week later Zander and Kent, began performing nightly equipped with the $50 guitar in the hands of Beebe, a borrowed one in the grasp of Zander, one microphone supplied by the bar played through a juke box speaker, and two tenor voices.

"They were looking for something new," Robin explained as the duo turned the Lookout Lounge from a businessmen's bar into a discotheque.

The Beer Keg and Lookout Lounge which were once separated, have now been turned into one area and the bulk of the crowd ranges in ages 18-30. Zander and Kent play a lot of Beatle songs and songs of other favorite individuals and groups that were popular in the 1960's and up to the present day. "They still ask for the old ones," Zander said noting that nostalgia has also hit Dells Country.

The two self-taught musicians have had their ups and downs in their four years as professionals. One of their more memorable nights was when a speaker cabinet blew up and Zander had to "tear it apart" in the middle of a performance.

On another occasion, a man in the crowd asked if they knew any 3 Dog Night songs. Zander and Kent shook their heads as did Cory Wells, the lead singer of 3 Dog Night.

But while they didn't make an immediate hit with Cory Wells, they have made a hit with over 100,000 people after appearing over 300 nights at the Lookout Lounge.

Starting their fourth year on the same gig has enabled them to buy an $800 guitar for Zander, $400 in microphones, a $900 sound system and an old restored 1964 Jaguar for Kent.

Zander, who plays acoustic and Kent, who picks electric, have had other things going for them outside the Dells.

In looking for the big break, they had a week stand in Aspen, Colo. and played with the Stone Ground, Warner Bros. recording artists. On that stand they also played with Sal Valentino, of the Beau Brummels and two girls who were in the original cast of "Hair."

While they have no agent, they rely on personal contacts for connections and have expanded into song writing, recording tapes and records.

Zander and Kent have recorded tapes in London and have signed a royalties contract in February. The song "Wait For Me" was written by the twosome and is expected to be released soon by Alaska Records with an English girl singer.

They have also recorded tapes at another studio in Lake Geneva and they are now waiting word on their work which is being reviewed by record producers in Los Angeles. In all, they have spent $1,300 recording nine songs, but have written "30 or so."

While Zander and Kent sit back and hope of making it big, they're happy at the Lookout Lounge. "After four years we know what the crowd wants and should want," Beebe said. And they're becoming more popular each day as Robin signed an autograph last week and someone sent flowers to their Lake Delton residence.

Tapes, records, autographs and flowers is only a start for Zander and Kent and the end of the rainbow may not be far off. Their "Impossible Dream" may be just a tune away from becoming a reality.

"You should learn from the mistakes of others. You can't live long enough to make all of them yourself."—Dale Holdridge, The Langford (S.D.) Bugle.

'North Star' An Example . . .

What Norm Sandley Builds Lasts

When Norman (Norm) Sandley builds something he builds it to last.

Take, for instance, a miniature locomotive named "North Star" that is still pulling little railroad cars for its 23rd season.

"North Star", pride and joy of the Steam Train Ride and the Sandley Light Railway Equipment Works, Inc. located on Stand Rock Road, was built at a cost of $15,000 in 1953 and with inflation, Sandley said the same locomotive now would cost $50,000 to construct.

The steam engine currently pulls five day coaches usually ladden with tourists and visitors on a four mile tour through woods, rock and canyons. The "North Star" is 24 feet long, 54 inches high, 32 inches wide and weighs five tons. The miniature railroad operates on an abandoned Milwaukee Road railbed near the west bank of the Wisconsin River and runs on a 15 inch narrow gauge track.

Sandley, 52, got the idea of the light steam railway from Englishman Sir Arthur Heywood, who originated this type of light railway to be used as a common carrier. With Sandley a 28 years experience as an engineer with the Chicago Northwestern and his fathers 42 years of railroad engineering experience, they brought the idea to the Dells area and the Steam Train has thrilled visitors since the opening.

The attraction was more tabbed America's first miniature steam railroad and today the grounds contain a Locomotive Shop, Car Shop, Carpenter Shop, Boiler Shop, Engine House, Pumping Station and Depot.

For old railroad buffs and visitors who have never ridden on a steam train it brings back fond memories for the older generation and fascination for the curious younger set.

The steam locomotive runs on coal and builds up 150 pounds of steam which could ultimately pull 75 tons up to speeds of 45 miles per hour.

Sandley said that his knowledge of steam locomotives has led to some contributions to improved steam gears, but the steam engine on the whole never did change.

Besides toting visitors on the four mile round trip excursion on the mini-rail, the Sandley Light Railway Equipment Works company builds custom made steam engines for private concerns around the world.

"We do experimental work to constantly develop new steam portable package steam apparatus, Sandley said, but we do free consulting work for private individuals more than anything."

Sandley said that his crew tries to build at least one steam locomotive per year for private individuals and it's custom vintage construction. Most of the company's finished product is purchased and goes to an unknown destination with an unknown use. The expert Sandley construction is so vintage that the owners don't want their particular steam engine to be duplicated and therefore most of the information on steam engines built are held in strict confidence with the purchaser. Sandley pointed out that their custom work isn't limited to miniature steam locomotives but to anything that is powered with a steam engine and shoes the heat.

With one not attuned to steam engine jargon Sandley can leave your mind wandering in railroad terms. Sandley tells of horizontal and vertical drives (for locomotives) and propeller drives for steam boats. And boilers—Scott marine, upright, horizontal return and water tube—flow from Sandley's lips as you can almost feel his mind pumping steam on the subject.

The expert cited the boilers as almost extinct in today's modern technology, but Sandley builds them and to the ASME (American Society of Mechanical Engineers) code. He added that his company is one of the few locomotive boiler shops in the free world.

The reason the boiler construction is rather obscure Sandley said is because "No one wants to bother (to make them) even if they know how to do it." He said that his overhead is low and they can build the machines without extreme cost.

While Sandley is the head of his railroad kingdom, he gives his five to eight employees a great deal of credit.

"They are very apt scholars to learn the business and most are interested in this business so far as the craft side of the thing," he said.

But while Sandley and his crew are experts in the field, they must constantly consult their railroad library "quite often" to make doubly sure their custom construction meets ASME code and their personal satisfaction. The library contains 10,000 volumes and periodicals, according to Sandley and his books from "Modern Steam Boilers" to "1879 Car Builders Dictionary."

He said his steam train ride acts as entertainment and doubles as a demonstrator in selling railways to people. "They actually mingle with tourists and see how it works," Sandley said.

The four mile trip takes you back in time and has all the conveniences and excitement of an 1880 overland trip. For the older set, it brings back a bit of nostalgia and for the younger generation it brings a page of American history to life.

And while modern technology moves swiftly outside the grounds of the attraction, old "North Star" continues to chug along.

UPPER DELLS BOAT TRIP — Picturesque walks through wooded valleys are a part of the Upper Dells Boat Trip.

Chula Attracts Pianist Nero

Peter Nero, a truly unique piano player, the 'emperor of the keyboard', will appear in the special Labor Day show at Chula Vista Resort in Wisconsin Dells, Monday, Sept. 2, with two shows, 8:30 p.m. and midnight.

Once again, the Kaminskis of Chula Vista Resort have reached out for a star of great magnitude and charisma, who has captured the eye of the entertainment world.

Through the years, and throughout the world, Peter Nero has heard the accolades of millions. He has played and performed for the great, the near great, and not so great. He has appeared on the bill with numerous show business greats, but the hurrahs and applause were for Nero, who really makes the piano strings fiddle while his audience fires up with enthusiasm for his great musical talent on the keyboard ivories.

He has been called a fine classical pianist, others have called him an accomplished jazz pianist, and some say a great popular pianist in the Carmen Cavalero tradition. Peter Nero is all of these wrapped up in one. Nero is truly the 'emperor of the keyboard', a musical category unto himself.

Chula Vista has presented to the Dells many of the great entertainers, and the Kaminski family, Joe, Vera, Fred and Dave, and the staff, certainly deserve plaudits for capturing this great keyboard master for the special show in keeping with the policy of only the best for Chula Vista patrons. That motto and policy have made the resort and cuisine one of the best in the Dells, and Chula Vista has been acclaimed by many world travellers as the best north of Miami Beach.

Reservations can be made by calling Chula Vista for details, (608) 254-8366. Ask for Dave or Fred, or send in your reservation to Chula Vista Resort, North River Road, Wisconsin Dells, Wis. 53965.

Promotion For The Dells

Promotion for the Dells area comes in funny packages sometimes, as this article from the Pekin, Ill. newspaper evidences.

E. E. Jake Jorsett, Sunrise, Ill., became so enamoured of the Wisconsin Dells - Lake Delton area after five vacations there, that he commissioned a local artist to decorate his hard hat to advertise the attributes of the Dells. Jake sent a photo of the hat to the Wisconsin Dells Events, along with his letter, stating that he wears the safety hat to work at Keystone every day.

Dell View Jamboree Opens

Host Pro Bob Kivlin will be looking toward defending the title he won last year, as the third annual Dell View Golf Jamboree opens today (Thursday) over the 18-hole Dell View layout in Lake Delton.

Kivlin fired a blistering 64 to set a new course record and win the Pro Division of the Jamboree last year, and might need to shoot as well this year if he hopes to repeat, as some of the state's top pros — including Madisen's Dennis Tiziani, Sou Worbick of Oshkosh and former Dell View Pro Mike Schnarr, now of Madison Blackhawk — are scheduled to compete.

Madison golfer Tim Byrne will be back to defend his amateur title, but will get stiff competition from Larry Tiziani, Harold Harder and former Lake Delton linksman Harry Warriner, as well as several local entries.

Kim Butler tuned up to defend her ladies title by winning the Daisy Open at the Baraboo Country Club Monday with an 84. Her top competition will probably come from Rosemary Iverson of the Dell View, who set a new course record Sunday with a one-under 71. Kim also won the ladies division at Reedsburg, with Mary Tollaksen the runner-up.

Other divisions in the Jamboree this year are the seniors and scratch best-ball divisions. Golfers are urged to contact Kivlin for further information and starting times.

Doug Alii and Rosemary Iverson set new course records at the Dell View last week.

Alii blistered the Dell View's front nine with seven birdies for a 27, the best nine-hole score ever. After parring number one, probably the easiest birdy hole on the course, he ran off consecutive birds on two, three, four and five. He settled for par again on the sixth, but then birdied in.

Miss Iverson set a new ladies 18 hole record with a one-under par 71. She scored birdies on numbers one, eight, 12 and 15, while bogeying four, 11 and 17 and matching par the rest of the way.

"Everything went just right," she told The Events Tuesday. "And it could have been better. I missed about six short putts for birdies."

How's Fishing

If the fishing hasn't been too hot for you, here is some stocking information that took place in Sauk County this spring, which might take you a step in the right direction with your favorite bait.

According to Dennis Jameson, Conservation Warden, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) stocked a total of 17,250 trout in the county, with 10,250 being rainbow trout and 7,000 brown trout.

Following is a breakdown of stocking per stream in the county: Rainbow trout—Honey Creek (north Branch) 1,000, Hay Creek 500, Otter Creek 250, Little Baraboo (Valton) 500, Dell Creek 3,000. Brown trout—Dell Creek 2,000.

In addition, there were 5,000 rainbow and 5,000 brown trout stocked in Devil's Lake State Park. "Remember," Jameson said, "There is no motor trolling allowed on Devil's Lake, and this includes electric motors."

Jameson said that trout fishing has been fair in the area, with cold temperatures and heavy rains slowing fishing down. "Lake Redstone has been producing some nice catches of bullheads and panfish," he said. "And some better-than-average size bluegills are being caught below the dam at Lake Delton. The channel above the "I" bridge on the Wisconsin River has been yielding some fair catches of stripers," Jameson concluded.

"Tact is the art of recognizing when to be big and when not to belittle."

Ceremonial Is Great Show

From the time the Stand Rock Indian Ceremonial festivities begin with the lighting of the council fires, until it ends, with the stirring National Anthem, children and adults remain fascinated by the dances, the costumes and the pageantry presented nightly.

Sounds of appreciation can be heard as families enter the natural amphitheatre, created by Stand Rock and the surrounding stone formations. The crowd is greeted by a head Indian usher, in full costume, and guided to seats placed on the naturally sloping hill. The bleacher-seats are padded and have comfortable backs, and as everyone settles down to admire the view, the show begins. Shunka Wakone, a Sioux Indian, enters the arena first and gives an interesting explanation of Indian history and crafts.

An Indian with a lighted torch officially begins the entertainment as he lights three council fires, and is followed by 49 Indians, in colorful authentic dress. All of the dancers, including 20 women, form a circle around the performing area and bow their heads for the opening prayer, given by Ceremonial Chief White Eagle. After the prayer, the Chief sits above the dancers, and holds a feathered staff which represents the Winnebago flag.

The friendship dance, symbolizing love, friendship and good will, opens the show, as seven Winnebago drummers beat out the rhythm. The eagle dance of the Winnebagos was performed by three dancers, and in contrast, the green corn dance was participated in by the whole group.

Humor was injected into the evening by several illustrations of the use of the Indian blanket, and nine Menomonie Indians from northern Wisconsin demonstrated the fish dance.

The contest dance, always a crowd pleaser, was especially enjoyable opening night, because the audience was so appreciative of the skill of each of the Indians; a small Indian girl, Verna Mallory, received a big hand as she soloed expertly. The minute Carson Cloud, one of the more accomplished dancers on the program, appeared to try his hand at the contest dance, the audience broke into spontaneous applause that lasted almost continuously during his performance.

From the audience's high vantage point, the snake dance really comes alive — as the dancers form a tight circle at times and then loosen it into a long string of men, representing the coiling and uncoiling of a snake.

Shunka Wakone entertains the audience each night with two original songs.

"I write songs of my people and our vanishing way of life," he explained. "My first song is about Custer's last stand. The Sioux were once the largest tribe of plains Indians, and they had to keep up with the large herds of buffalo - to get food. By 1876, they experienced a narrowed way of life - their boundaries were from Nebraska to Canada, bordered by the Black Hills of South Dakota. At the time of Custer's last stand, the Sioux Indians gathered together in hopes that their last show of strength would stop the invasion of the Black Hills by the white man."

Good Wing leads the women in the wild goose dance, and their graceful, outstretched arms symbolize the appearance of the majestic bird. They also illustrate the flight pattern of the birds by their dance formation.

The crowd reacts with a gasp each evening as the startling flaming arrow flies into the air and disappears over the trees into the river - marking the beginning of the chilling war dance. Winnebago Indians used to do this dance in the Spring of the year.

The National Anthem, which the audience stirringly sings, is at its most inspiring when sung at the Indian Ceremonial, with the Native American Indians singing in full dress costumes, the natural amphitheatre ringing with sound, the giant American flag unfolding slowly, and colored lights highlighting the points of interest in the beautiful Stand Rock formation.

Back Wins Double Feature At Dells

After posting the fast time of the night, Jim Back, of Vesper, Wisc., driving a 1974 Camaro, won the double feature, "Dells 100" Saturday night, at the Dells Motor Speedway.

Back, and Dick Trickle exchanged leads in the first 50-lap event twice, but Back took the lead on the 36th lap for keeps and Trickle had to settle for second. Tom Musgrave went out for the early lead, before Trickle caught hold in the 15th lap and held on until the 24th lap. Trickle came back to re-take the lead on the 30th lap but lost the edge on the 36th lap.

Mike Miller of New Prague, Minn., made a late bid to try and take the second spot from Trickle, but fell short for third place, and fourth went to Tom Musgrave, followed by Joe Ruttman.

Back made it two straight in the second 50-lap event but took the lead much earlier.

Jim Olson of Mazomanie started from the pole position and held on for the first 28-laps, before Back took over the remaining 22-laps. This time however Back's win was by almost a half-lap lead over second place finisher, Joe Shear, So. Beloit, Ill. Early leader, Jim Olson finished third, followed by Joe Ruttman, and Dick Trickle respectively. Back's Camaro was timed in at 14.927 seconds.

Jon Chrest, Hammel, Minn. took the semi-feature victory over Harry Bahr, Minneapolis, by a quarter of a lap. Chrest had started in the middle of the field and worked his way to the top spot. Tony Strupp, Slinger, Wis., finished third.

On the very last lap in the consolation event John McNamara, Baraboo, crossed the white line ahead of Cal Wilhelm to pick up the checkered flag. McNamara, was in the fourth spot coming out of the final turn, when leader Homer Spink lost control, and spun out. McNamara powered his Chevelle through the mishap to take the win, his first of the year.

This area was discovered June 16, 1948. Since that time, many persons have come to see and feel this unusual different place. Your guide will show you some demonstrations that will help you to enjoy this area.

Drivers Provide Thrilling Rides . . .

It's Not Duck's Nature To Give 'Tame' Rides

Pete Paulson came back to the Dells for the summer and passengers on the Lower Dells Wisconsin Ducks are glad he did.

Paulson, a sandy-haired junior at New Mexico State University, thrilled 16 passengers this week on one of his many tours given daily over land, water and around trees and rock formations. He's one of the 19 reasons 30 per cent of the visitors on the Wisconsin Ducks return again for another tour. The other 18 reasons comprise the other 18 drivers that conduct tours through picturesque Dells Country.

You take the knowledgable and interesting drivers, sprinkle with sun and warm weather, add the excitement of vacation-time and cover it with extraordinary Lower Dells beauty and out comes one of the most enjoyable one hour excursions you've experienced.

The Lower Dells Wisconsin Ducks dock, located on Hwy. 12 just south of Wisconsin Dells, is the starting point for fun and thrills on castoff U.S. Army Amphibious Ducks built in 1943 for wartime purposes.

With Paulson at the helm, visitors from South Bend, Ind., Bensenville, Ill., Rockford, Chicago, Ill.; Manitowoc, Wis., and Oconto, Wis., embarked on the land-water tour and the young children and older adults alike loved the ride from the start.

Matt Bubon, manager of the Wisconsin Ducks, said, "The drivers make the tour."

When asked later what course of study he is pursuing in college, Paulson stated, "I'm really not sure." For the passengers on Paulson's Amphibious Duck Corregidor, they probably thought a career in public relations may not be a bad start.

Paulson is a two-year veteran of the tours after spending one season on a shuttle duck, running from various points in the Dells-Lake Delton area. He makes an average of six tours a day and after countless trips, has the tour information memorized. But, while he has the information down pat, he adds personality, humor and expertise which made him very popular on the tour.

While Paulson does his thing on Corregidor, 18 other drivers give tours from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. on 20 Ducks. The Wisconsin Ducks also have three shuttle drivers operating.

The Ducks were originally Army surplus vehicles bought by Herman A. Breitenback after World War II. Because of their versatility, the Ducks are ideal for a tour of Dells Country. During the tour the vehicles maneuver with ease through steep trails, deep ravines and rugged rock formations and with the same ease they give the tourist a smooth ride on water.

Corregidor is 31 feet long, 8 feet wide and weighs about 7 tons. It is powered by a 100 H.P. motor and can attain speeds up to 60 M.P.H. on land and about 10 M.P.H. in water.

After leaving the Lower Dells Duck Dock, the tour passes Old Chicago statues that once graced the old Chicago Board of Trade Building. The granite figures were shipped to the Dells at a cost of $10,000.

Fern Dells was next and Paulson quickly advised all passengers to fasten their seat belts. However this was found to be a light-hearted tactic in communication as it was found that the Duck contained no seat belts.

With the tourists still buzzing over their inability to locate the waist straps, Paulson then headed Corregidor through trees to Fern Dell, a cool region abound with 27 varieties of ferns.

From here, the tourists were given explanations of the operation of the amphibious vehicle and pre-water information and Paulson came through again like a real gear-jammer.

Then, once in the Wisconsin River waters, the Baby Grand Piano and Hawk's Beak formations were observed and explained. While passing the famous Hawk's Beak formation, one tourist seemed perplexed and quickly set straight as to the real Hawk's Beak.

"I thought that over there was Hawk's Beak," she said. Paulson turned grinning, "You mean there's another one?"

By this time the suntanned Paulson had his cargo of tourists in the palm of his hand. Just after Hawk's Beak, he pointed out one of the sandiest beaches in the Dells area and exclaimed, "I've seen some of the most beautiful formations in the whole Dells on that beach."

From the Wisconsin to Dell Creek and into Lake Delton made a big splash as the Duck dove into the water from the first amphibious landing.

"Don't worry about the water (that sprayed and washed into the boat)," Paulson said. "This lake is artificial and that's just artificial water."

Upon crossing Lake Delton, one observes the mansion Dawn Manor, built in 1855 in the old city of Newport. The mansion, built of Potsdam sandstone with walls three feet thick was described by architect Frank Lloyd Wright as a gem.

After crossing County Trunk A, Paulson took to the hills and rolled over Suicide Hill and Roller Coaster Hill. Paulson then popped another one-liner nearing Suicide Hill by saying that if anyone was scared while crossing the terrain, "do as I do and close your eyes."

A short time later, the tourists, back at home base had the look of enjoyment on their faces and one commented, "I loved the tour. It was interesting, exciting and the driver's sense of humor adds a lot to the trip."

But while Pete Paulson didn't hit anything on the tour, he did make a hit with his passengers. Paulson added another dimension to the Wisconsin Duck tours. No wonder 30 percent of the visitors return to Dells Country for another ride on the fascinating Wisconsin Ducks.

Three Actors Are Wisconsinites

Among the Edgewood Summer Theatre actors, are three Wisconsin players; Dean Javes from Appleton, Jerome G. Schmidt from Waupun, and Brian Hale from Stoughton.

Dean Javes is an apprentice at the Dells area theatre and appears in My Three Angels and Arsenic and Old Lace. He was selected through competitive auditions, and is a member of the International Thespian Society.

This summer, he has found the theatre's workshops and seminars to be one of the most challenging aspects of the apprentice program. The opportunity to broaden his knowledge of acting techniques, and the chance to put to use what he has learned, proves very rewarding.

Jerome G. Schmidt has been director of theatre for six years in Waupun, and is experienced in both acting and directing.

He appears in the Edgewood performances of Arsenic and Old Lace, My Three Angels and Butterflies are Free.

He attended the London Theatre Workshop last summer, and found three main differences between the theatre in the US and that in England.

"The first difference occurs in the type of training emphasized," Jerome stated. "English schools stress voice and diction, while American schools stress interpretation and body expression. The second difference is that the English not only teach theatre as a subject, but they use it as a dynamic educational tool to teach other subjects."

His third observation is that going to the theatre in England is as common as going to a movie is here in the US.

Brian Hale is a member of the professional repertory company, and has major roles in Barefoot in the Park, Arsenic and Old Lace, Here Lies Jeremy Troy and My Three Angels.

An actor mainly, Brian has also done some work with high school students and in directing children's theatre.

In the past, Brian has worked with both professional and community theatre groups. He was asked how the two types of theatre differ.

"The main difference lies in commitment and intensity. In professional theatre, the individual looks upon his work as a commitment to the arts. Also, he spends a greater number of hours working at a more advanced level.

"There is a difference between an individual who acts (in community or college theatre) and an actor (the professional)," he stated. "Many of us sing, but few of us would consider ourselves singers.

"I feel theatre should be more than just entertainment," Brian emphasized. "It should be an enjoyable learning experience for the audience. An experience in which an individual will take with him something that will carry over into his life."

Pier Is New Dells Addition

The Pier building, on the corner of Broadway and Oak, is a relatively new addition to the area.

The rich brown brick building, with the shake shingle roof, replaced the 120 year-old Pier structure on the same corner.

The atmosphere-rich interior contains an attractive dining room with accents of red against the dark wood of the tables and chairs. A spacious cocktail bar is next to the dining room, and the seating capacity of those two sections is 130.

Pete Blatchley, (one of the owners of the Pier) along with his brother, Dick, describes the decor as "rustic nautical with an exposed beam ceiling and accent track lighting."

The original Pier building was constructed as a store in the now ghost city of Newport between 1851 and 1855.

POLYNESIAN DANCERS — Featured dancers of Doug Alfi's Polynesian Revue, who perform three times a day at the Tommy Bartlett Water & Ski Show, are these three sisters, Yodie Fraire, Helen Fraire, who Doug claims "dances up a storm"; and lead dancer and costume designer, Nina Nomura. Another performer who has been pleasing capacity crowds this season is Tui Tagaloa, fire knife dancer from Pago Pago American Samoa.
